lale a Mortal Blow?

What effect will this reverse have on the Republican party? Aside from the fact that its series of brilliant triumphs has been interrupted by a defeat, is there anything in the situation to discourage Reicans? Can the Republican party live incidents of prestige and patronage necessary to keep it alive? These are questions which men of all parties will ask naturally at this time.

after defeat in the condition in which the success. What has happened was brought about by 1,150 votes falling on the wrong women. side in a State which polled a million and a quarter of votes. A change of 600 votes in that one State would have changed the whole result. Except that a miss is as ness of the bowels, pure arrand houses not good, or as bad, as a mile, there is no disuragement in this.

Governor Gleveland's total plurality is about 445,000. The Northern States, comprising the section of greatest developed wealth and highest industrial activity, contributes but 12,462 to this aggregate, and this after carrying four Northern States, including the great common wealths of New York and Indiana. With the whole of the Solid South, whose vote is wide-open to criticism, Governor Cleveland's net plurally is less than 40,000, and his electoral majority nineteen. Mr. Blaine's pluralities are entirely in the North, and they aggregate 405,000. Some estimates give to Mr. Blaine the net popular plurality. There is no discouragement in this for Republicans.

At the same election a House of Repreentatives was chosen. Here there was a decided change. In the present House the Democrats have a majority of seventyfive. In the next House they will have but thirty-nine-a loss of nearly half their majority. In this there is a direct and very significant Republican gain. Other considerations enter into this general inquiry. Tried by the recent record, the Republican party is full of health. After it shall have laid down control it will stand as the most powerful opposition the country has ever seen; compact, intelligent, devoted to its principles, led by men of long and faithful service—expert par-liamentarians, experienced legislators, capable statesmen of unquestioned devotion to the Republican organization. There is no occasion for lamentation or despondency. The full-blooded men of the Republican party will, smile at the reverse and go right on to victory.

West Virginia and the "Pap."

Let us take our bearings before we go much further, and see whither we are drifting. It is to be assumed that in the parcelling out of the fat by the incoming administration there are West Virginia Democrats who will not stubbornly decline to bear their share of the public bur-den. They might fight a little shy at first. Their strict constructionist principles may disincline them to accept what is offensively called the "pap" or the patronage of the "Federal Government," which is held by some authorities to be also a term of more or less reproach. But these seruples will in time be overcome. "Pap" is omething like vice,

As to be hated needs but to be seen:
But seen too off, familiar with its face,
We first endure, thus pity, then courses.
Not intending to affront anybody, we take it for granted that somebody will be found willing to accept West Virginia's share of the plunder. This difficulty over come, the next question arises is, How House Civil Service Committee? Or by the West Virginia member of the National the West Virginia member of the National Committee sitting as a Civil Service Reform Commission of one? This is am important matter, and it ought to be settled before we go further.

It is true that the State House has of late accepted the greater part of the burden of holding the State level. It is alse soized and possed of an organ, which Mr. Baker, in a moment of disgast with the world, put from him. But Mr. Baker is reported to be the best politician in the Democratic party in West Virginia. If 'President Cleveland has his eye on a second term he will hesitate to monkey with anything that is loaded.

It is suggested by medical neen and by common sense that there should be a Na tional quarantine to take in the whole coast, so that nothing may be sacrificed to the ground of the "general welfare," for Wheeling and Pittsburgh and Cincinnati and San Francisco are deeply interested in the cargoes that land at New York and out of power, or was power with all its Philadelphia and Baltimore and New Or-

In Braxton country Cleveland's official majority is 640, whereas Brannen's is 530, In 1,2wis (his home) Cleveland's majority is 178, firannon's enly 112. In Gilmer county Cleveland's majority is 353, Brannon's 320. In Harrison county Cleveland less Braine 232, Goff over Brannon 518. In Doddridge Cleveland less Braine 217, Goff over Brannon 243; and so it runs throughout the district. It will be seen in the five counties above named Cleveland has a major ty of 692 votes, and Brannon only 201—snowing thereby if Brainon had got Cleveland's vote he would have been elected by a majority greater that Goff's. He did not run up with his ticket, nearest his home, for reasons not necessary to mention.

Cleveland carried the District by a large sportly, Branton lost it by 241—Goff's najority. It is a dangerous thing to engage whisky

It is a dangerous thing to engage whisky shops and beer saloons too early in the campaign. The Judge thought he had a sure thing, and bragged—"the Dutch were for him." But alas! how an aspirant for office may be deceived!

The Judge's threatened contest is the veriest bosh! If he could not win on Cleveland's ticket, backed up by appliances of the State's greatest charrity, with Governor Jackson's aid, and his own liberal expenditures of money, what can be expect before a Democratic House elected by the skin of its teeth, and placed upon its good behavior by a loss of one-half of its present majority? We opine that the Judge, when he will have taken time for a breathing spell and "see himself as others see him," will retire from the field of politics and give place to that class of youngermen, who are fast coming forward, ambitions to share in their country's honor, and whose superior qualifications entitle them to her recognition.

To Restrain on Unruly Animal

No one can travel very far in a cattle section of the country at this season of the year, when the pasture feed is short, and perhaps the springs low, without seeing attle or horses fettered by some sort of a cattle or horses fettered by some sort of a clumsey or crude apparatus to prevent them from jumping over fences. Sometimes it is a heavy "poke" hung to the neck with an arm projecting forward to catch under the fence; oftener, perhaps, particularly on cattle, we see the head loaded down to blind the eyes, or the head is covered nearly all over with leather or heavy sacking for the same purpose. A cow that is made constantly uncomfortable must have her milk and butter yield considerably reduced, and is consequently less profitable to her owner. The Breeder's Journal recommends a light harness for baulky cattle made as Jollows:

Gloves Worn When in Full Dress. New York Trails.

We are not authorized to say whether Mr. Baker would, consent to come from the retirement at Elm Grove to stirthe devil's broth of political pap. He may prefer his ease. Or, he may develop a riotous inclination to take a little hand for the pleasure of the thing or the welfare of the party.

No slate can be framed safely until it is known who is to write the names on it. We trust there may be no unpleasantness about this matter in any of its phases. The sweets of office are not worth the bitterness of unseemly striving within the party.

Is the Chulera Combag?

Will the cholera come? And if it does, what are we going to do about it? These are the questions which are exciting more interest on the Atlantic seaboard than in the Ohio Valley and the region beyond. For the same reason that Paris is not far from New York, the Ohio is not a long journey from the western shore of the Valley below and the region beyond. For the same reason that Paris is not far from New York, the Ohio is not a long journey from the western shore of the Valley below and the region beyond. The province of the prov from New York, the Ohio is not a long journey from the western shore of the Atlantic. Cholera keeps up with the advancing tide of civilization, traveling now by steam instead of by sail and lumbering stage coach. It becomes for us an interesting inquiry whether the Asiatic plague is likely to attack the seaports of the East, and whether those ports are well-provided for the defense.

Astounding Familiarity.
